LINEUP

Europe is wrestling with digital independence – and Switzerland is charting its own path between reliance on global tech giants and local control.

The Netzwoche special on «Digitale Souveränität» shows how administrations at the three levels of government, businesses and other organisations, as well as developers, can regain control and agency in the digital realm, from ICT infrastructure through software and data to artificial intelligence.

This special edition examines strategies, identifies dependencies and clarifies where digital sovereignty is realistic – and where it remains an illusion.
